Bill Analysis

SB 547 clarifies an authorization for minor self-consent to treatment of a communicable disease to specify that it does not apply to the administration of any vaccine, for which the measure requires the consent of the parent or legal guardian. The measure gives parents the right to access and review all medical records of their minor, unless the minor is otherwise authorized to self-consent to treatment or the parent or guardian is subject to an investigation of a crime committed against the minor child.
